KIDNEY TROUBLE

A gentleman of this city had Diabetes, had been given up by reputable physicians at this and other cities. I found the cause of his kidney disorder coming from the place in his spine noted in the illustration. After a few Chiropractic adjustments the man was well. My results are not confined to Diabetes alone but any kidney disorder yields readily to my drugless method. Examination Free.

The new hospital will be of brick construction trimmed with stone and will be absolutely fire proof throughout. No efforts or expense will be spared to make the building one of the best equipped in this section.
Funds for the new structure have not been collected as yet but the Sisters ask the citizens of Janesville and their friends here and in the surrounding country to give them the assistance possible in so worthy a cause. The undertaking is a responsible one financially and should be well supported by the residents of the city for whose benefit the work is being done.

An admission fee of ten cents was charged. The proceeds, which amounted to about seven dollars will be used for the missionary work of the organization in Japan.

What's the Lesson About Tonight?

By W. C. Kenaga.
What does Advertising, the new educator, say?
Much. Of interest to you?
That's better.
Travel? Colorado, Michigan, Canada and Northwest resorts where life's enjoyable in midsummer.
Land? Some Texas farms and their fertility described in the display columns. Near by farms listed in a goodly number on the classified pages.
Toilet requisites? An abundance of them — most any page.
Clothes? surely — a representation of the best stores in Janesville which sell clothing — for men, women and children.
There's a lesson tonight on a subject in which you are most interested — somewhere in the advertising columns of the Gazette. Turn the pages and find it.

An Easy Way To Get What You Want

You do not always WANT what you NEED but you will WANT IWANTU GAS IRON as much as you NEED it when you know more about it. For instance—

For One Cent's Worth of Gas You May Do Three Hours' Ironing. It Pays for Itself in Decreased Fuel Bills

You save all those steps from the Gas Range to the ironing board—and they are many in the course of an hour with ordinary irons.

The Gas iron is connected to a Gas fixture easily and quickly; the Gas is turned on, lighted and you may begin to iron.

The iron stays hot—that saves the tiring steps to the range.

The heat is in the iron—not in the room. That's a big thing in hot weather.

The price of an IWANTU GAS IRON is $3.50. Burning only 1/5 of one cent's worth of Gas an hour you soon save this first cost in fuel.

You need not pay this $3.50 at once. Order the iron, try it for a week and then pay 50 cents. After that we will add 75 cents to your Gas bill for four months.

A representative will call and demonstrate the iron; give him your order for an IWANTU.

Remember the price includes tubing, connection, AND OUR GUARANTEE

THE OHIO CONTEST.

The political contest in Ohio, which has raged so fiercely during the past two weeks, will be settled tomorrow, and the country will breathe easier, for the spectacle presented has been anything but inspiring. The expected happens in every hotly contested campaign, when stump speakers and spellbinders sacrifice dignity and indulge in personalities, but the people have a right to expect better things when men like the president and ex-president descend to the level of the ordinary "mud-slinger."

The performance would be amusing were it not so disgusting, for the articles of La Follette and Bryan, chasing over the states, are like the frantic yappings of small dogs in a dog-fight. The former is a conundrum to both of the principles in the fray, and something of an annoyance, but he doesn't shake off worth a cent, and will be in at the finish, providence permitting.

The latter is touring the state just now for his health, with a weather eye to vindictive. He has played Clark against the field to the limit of safety, and is now engaged in putting a few snatching touches on Harmon and Woodrow Wilson. His mental vision is tolerably clear and he includes the White House as a possibility.

The campaign of 1912 will pass to history as unique in many ways. Should Roosevelt bolt the party, as he is liable to do if defeated in the convention, it will mean a new alignment. Whatever may be the outcome, the feeling of bitterness is so intense that party lines will be ignored. Mr. Bryan and Senator La Follette are martyrs to the great progressive movement, which has swept over the country like a tidal wave. Both men claim that the Intrepid colonel, with the big stick, has stolen their thunder, but both have a personal following that the old parties are finding it difficult to control.

Men who have been lifelong republicans, are found in every community declaring, "If Taft is nominated I won't vote for him, or if Roosevelt is selected I won't support him." The democrats are so much at sea, and their party has been out in the cold so long, that they are making no real promises, but many of them have a weakness for Bryan.

The corporation known as the government, in which every voter has a voice, is very much at sea, and very much in the same condition that any large corporation would be when disorganized by internal strife. Leadership and concrete management is as necessary to the success of government as to the success of any other corporation.

If a church wants a pastor, how do they get him? Not by a vote of the people, but through a committee in whom the people have confidence. That's intelligent action, adopted by all corporate interests, yet in disrepute by the American people today, because they have been fooled by the sophistry of demagogues, and led to believe that they were boss-ridden and oppressed.
Much of this talk

tive government and the voice of the people is the cheapest kind of political clapnet. If the people of Wisconsin come any nearer governing themselves than they did ten years ago, they have nothing to show for it but a fat tax roll and get the "mon."

This is the doctrine on which Colonel Roosevelt is making his campaign. He wants the people to believe that they are down-trodden and oppressed, and his appeals to prejudice and ignorance are effective because his word is considered law on any proposition.

The breaking up of parties, whether in a state or nation, means the rule of a demagogue, and that is simply monarchial rule, under another name. The state of Wisconsin has had a taste of it, and the nation is flirting on dangerous ground.

The issue of the campaign is radicalism, pure and simple. It remains to be seen how the republican party will meet the issue.
The London press is making considerable sport of Senator Smith of the Titanic investigating committee, because of his lack of nautical knowledge, displayed in the examination of witnesses. The fact has long been recognized that an Englishman, on his native soil, requires all jokes to be labeled, but the Titanic tragedy was not a joke, and altogether too serious a matter for frivolous comment. Somebody made a blunder, on that fateful night, and it was not an American, neither was the company that sent the liner out half-equipped an American company, yet this land furnished its full quota of victims.

Ex-Governor Hoard continues to pour hot-shot into the ranks of the insurgents. He says, in the last issue of the Jefferson County Union, that one of the assemblymen was invited to go out and examine the farms that the university bought at $1,200 per acre. He pronounced it a steal and said that he would not support the bill, but he did. Asked afterward for his reason he said that he had orders from headquarters, and yet the people rule. In this age of representative government, "NRI!"

The systematic removal of garbage, as outlined by the council, is a move in the right direction, and will accomplish much for the sanitary conditions of the city. The work of the commission is already being felt in many directions, and before the year closes the most skeptical will be convinced that the city made no mistake in adopting the new plan of government. It means better streets with more intelligent care, and value received for every dollar expended.

Perhaps the rowdy element in baseball games will find that it does not pay to fight with spectators who hurt their tender feelings by frequent jeering at poor plays. Ty Cobb is a great ball player but he used mighty poor judgment in New York and his teammates have also not displayed any brilliancy in striking in opposition to the regulations of the league they are members of.

Other cities are making arrangements to take their old soldier citizens to the cemetery on Decoration day instead. Janesville tried it once with success. Why not attempt the same thing again?

Oiling the streets is going to prove beneficial to the property-owners as well as economical to the city itself. Whomever tried it has proved successful when properly done.

Hardly a newspaper in the state does not have something in its columns about the coming state convention of the Eagles to be held here next month.

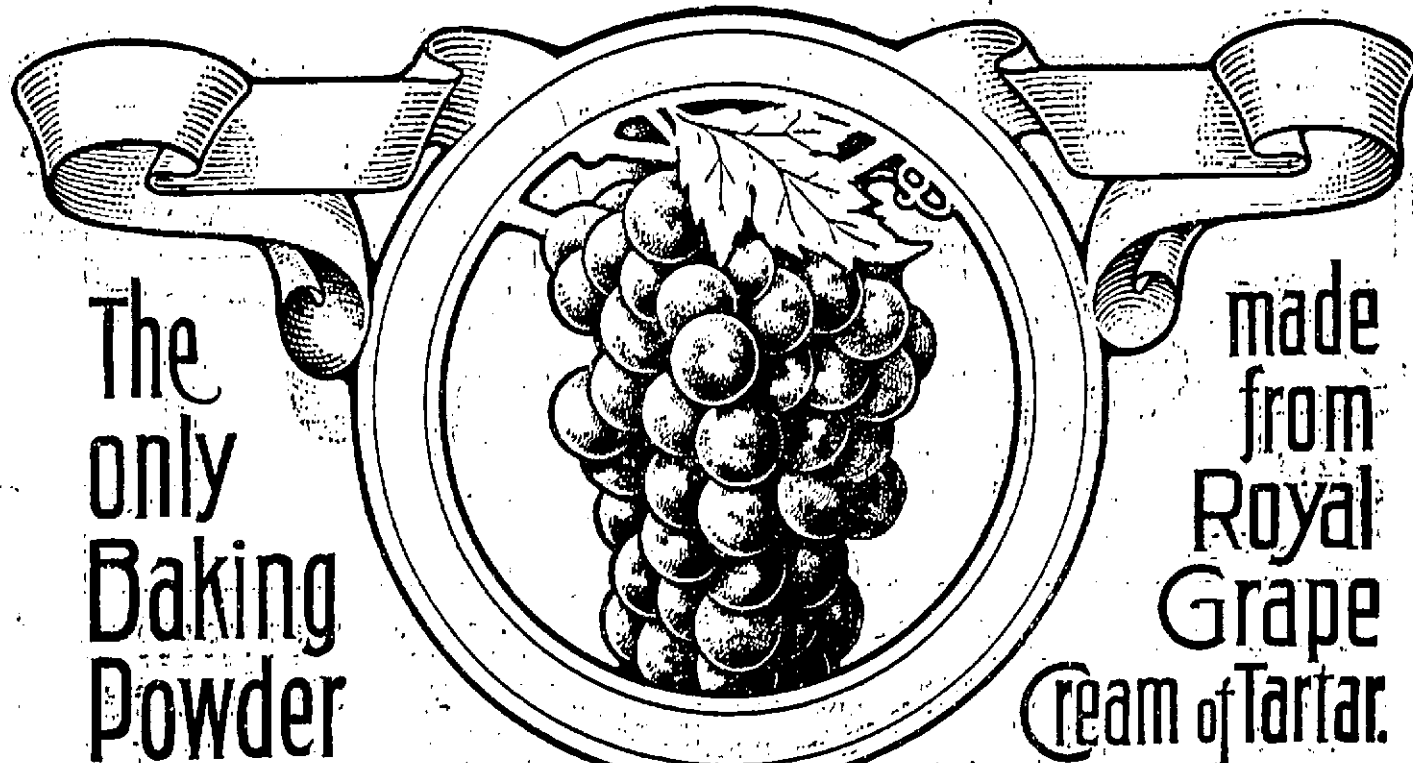

Chief Appleby is evidently in earnest when he issues an order that autolists must observe the speed laws while driving their cars about the city.

MANUFACTURERS OPEN ANNUAL CONVENTION

Present Economic Conditions and Recent Developments Will be Discussed at Meeting in New York.

New York, May 20.—Representatives of the business interests of the country from nearly every state of the Union assembled at the Waldorf-Astoria today for the opening of the seventeenth annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers. The session today was devoted principally to executive business, but during the next two days a wide variety of subjects. Present economic conditions, and the development during the past year in such vital activities as labor, politics, currency reform, industrial relief, and trade education will be given attention. Employers' liability and workmen's compensation will be exhaustively discussed, also the national eight hour bill and the Clayton bill providing trial by jury in certain contempt cases. At Wednesday's session the election of officers will take place. John Kirby, Jr., of Dayton, O., whose term as president of the association expires, is not seeking re-election, but it is probable he may be pressed to serve again.

Sons of American Revolution. Boston, May 20.—Boston is entertaining for two days a large gathering of men whose proud boast it is that they are descended from Revolutionary stock. The occasion of the gathering is the twenty-third annual congress of the National Society, Sons of the American Revolution, which began today with headquarters at the Hotel Somerset. The business sessions of the congress are being held in Faneuil Hall and the Old South Meeting House.

The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring.
(Revised from "The Mikado" with apologies to Gilbert and Sullivan).
Flowers that bloom in the spring, trill, trill, trill, I have never appeared much to me. For them I do not care a ding, trill, trill, trill, Their beauties I can never sing, trill, trill, trill, Their sentiment I cannot see.

They do not inspire me, For they only tire me, They're one of the cares of my life, They're far too extensive For things so expensive, They bloom in the hat of my wife.

Uncle Ezra Harkins of our town has received word that his brother, out in Wyoming has had another narrow escape from death. The state board of pardons got busy on his case just in time.If the sun shines every single day in the year, on both sides of the street, this would be a blamed monotonous world to live in.
There is such a thing as being too happy all the time, but a fellow can very easily avoid this by moving next door to a family that has three daughters taking lessons, and a young son who plays on the mandolin.The barber shop is the great nucleus center of this country. I never yet saw a barber who didn't play something, even if it was only tank.
Amos Hinkler went down to New York the other day to paint the town red, but was back on the next train. He ran out of paint. He only had $12.

"Couldn't have lost it?" Thunder! replied the nervous man, sarcastically, "I lost a bass drum once."

The conductor came into the car and yelled "tickets!"

MOTORCYCLIST HURT; COLLIDES WITH AUTO

John Minor Thrown From Wheel at Corner of Court and South Main Streets While Running at High Rate of Speed.

John Minor, one of a party of Madison motorcycleists visiting the city, collided with the automobile of George Gower at the intersection of Main and Court streets a little before nine o'clock yesterday morning and was thrown from his machine. He was at once picked up and carried into the candy store of I. A. English where Dr. E. P. Woods examined him to learn the extent of his injuries. No bones were broken, but Minor suffered a severe shaking up and a slight concussion of the brain from which he has not yet recovered. He was able to leave for his home by train the same morning. His machine was badly damaged.

According to eye-witnesses of the accident Minor was responsible for it. A few minutes before he and two companions went down South Main street, intending to go to Beloit. A shower came up and they started back up town, running at high speed. Minor, who was ahead of his companions, is said to have been going thirty or forty miles an hour. Just before he reached the intersection of Court and Main streets, Mr. Gower started to cross Court street in his auto, going at a rate of not more than ten miles an hour. He did not see the motorcycle until it was practically upon him, but swung his car around so quickly that it was almost thrown upon the curb. Minor, who was attempting to run in ahead of the automobile, struck its front wheel, and was thrown from his machine with great force.

Policeman Manning, who was called to the scene of the accident, placed Minor under arrest. H. H. McDonald appeared for him this morning and entered a plea of "guilty." Judge Fifield imposed the minimum sentence of $10 and costs, amounting to $12.50.

Fred Granger, who with Julius Gill, was arrested for racing on Milwaukee street hill Friday afternoon, entered a plea of guilty this morning and paid a similar fine.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Automobile Stolen: Chief of Police Appleby has been notified by Chicago & Holland detective agency of Chicago that a Chalmers "thirty-six" touring car was stolen from that city. The machine has a four-door body, painted light green. The running gear, hood and fenders were painted black. It was equipped with head, side and tail lamps, Vestal electric generator, Morgan & Wright nobbly tread tires on real wheels. The factory number was 21089, and the motor number 14,044. One hundred dollars reward is offered for its return.

Two Drunks Arraigned: Charles Bucknell and James Sullivan were arraigned before Judge Fifield on a charge of intoxication this morning. Bucknell, who claimed to be on his way from Lake Geneva to his home in Edgerton, was committed to jail for five days as he was not able to pay his fine of $2 and costs. James Sullivan, a deaf and dumb man, entered a plea of not guilty and his trial was set for 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Automobile Parties: Automobile mobile parties registered at the Myers hotel on Saturday were: M. S. Trelovere, Chicago, and T. E. Atchison and driver of Milwaukee; O. R. Grady and W. L. Elson, St. Paul; and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hennaway and Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Woodruff of Chicago. W. N. Adams and family and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. D. Schubert of Lancaster stopped at the Myers yesterday. Paul Pratt of Fort Atkinson and Mr. Chalmers of Watertown, came here Saturday in their machines and were registered at the Grand hotel.

Finch Paving Half Block: Gumb and Graham's workmen finished today laying brick on the west side of North Main street between Milwaukee street and First street and will start in the cement binder as soon as possible. That part of the street will probably be open to traffic by the end of the week.

Setting Turbine: The new steam turbine for the Janesville Electric company has been moved into the power house and is now being lowered into position on the concrete foundation prepared for it. The moving was done without interfering in any way with the operation of the machinery.

Was Not Speeding: F. S. Baltes, whose automobile collided with that of Bert Van Houten, Friday afternoon, states that he was not making thirty miles an hour as some of the bystanders reported his speed. Mr. Baltes says that he was not going over twelve miles an hour and he also feels that he was in no way to blame for the accident as Mr. Van Houten was turning his machine and before the collision machine could be stopped, the collision occurred.

STEAM BLEW MAN OFF RIVER BANK

Henry Hanson, Who Stood in Front of Exhaust Pipe at Electric Plant Saturday, Blown into River by Exhaust.

Escaping steam from an exhaust pipe at the plant of the Janesville Electric company, blew Henry Hanson, a local fisherman, off the west bank of the river Saturday afternoon, while Mr. Hanson was engaged in his favorite pastime. Mr. Hanson was standing on the bank of the river just in front of the exhaust pipe, when the outlet was opened and the steam issued forth with such force that Mr. Hanson was lifted off the bank. He lost his hat and fish-pole when he was thrown into the water, but he is a good swimmer as well as an expert angler, and, despite the swiftness of the current and the depth of the water, he recovered those before swimming back to the bank. Employees at the electric light plant extended a ladder to him, and Mr. Hanson climbed out of the water and went into the plant to dry his clothes.

THE PASSING OF AN OLD STORE

Brown Bros.' Shoe Store Stock to be Closed Out to Settle the Estate.

For years the stand on the Milwaukee street bridge, known as Brown Bros., has grown and grown. Wednesday morning the noose of this old store was to be closed to the public. This stock has become involved in the settling of an estate and it has been given out that a stupendous sale is being arranged for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will be taken up in marking the stock, reducing the prices to a minimum so that sales will be easily made and the cash turned quickly. This work will be finished so that the store will be opened next Saturday, May 25, at 8 A. M., and the sale started at that time.

Mrs. H. W. Brown, who has been made executrix of the estate, gives but little information regarding the passing of the store. She feels, however, that it is very important that the stock be turned into cash at once and with this in view Mr. A. J. Cleveland has been appointed sales manager to conduct the details of closing out the stock. Mr. Cleveland states that complete announcements of the sale and prices that will be the lowest ever quoted in Janesville, will be printed in later editions of the Gazette.

CARD OF THANKS.

OFFERS ASSISTANCE TO LOCAL SHIPPERS

Secretary Lane of Commercial Club Will Aid Business Men to Choose Routes for Prompt Delivery of Goods.

In order to assist local merchants and manufacturers in securing prompt delivery of outside orders to this city, J. E. Lane, general secretary of the Commercial club, has offered to aid them in choosing routes which will possibly prevent any delays. The freight handlers' strike in Chicago and Milwaukee is seriously delaying the transfer of freight at these points, and Mr. Lane suggests that it is often possible to keep away from these gateways by choosing a different route, which they may do by consulting with him.

False Alarm: The fire department was called to the Janesville Batting Mills at 2:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon as the result of a false alarm caused by a derangement in the automatic sprinkler system. The department was called there a week ago through a similar derangement operating the automatic alarm. The bell sounded one tap this afternoon with no apparent cause and, on investigation, Chief Klein found that a switchboard lever had been moved out of place.

CROWDS AT CHURCHES

People of Los Angeles Seem Especially Faithful and Fill Church Edifices to Their Capacity.

Impressions and descriptions of the Pacific coast country were recounted in an interesting manner by the Rev. T. D. Williams at the Carnegie M. E. church last evening.

Rev. T. D. Williams has just returned from a journey along the entire length of the coast from Seattle, Wash., to Tijuana, Mexico, covering in all some 7,000 miles.

He spoke briefly of his journey to the coast on the Columbia, one of the palatial trains on the new Puget Sound extension of the St. Paul railroad.

During a portion of the trip westward, Mr. Williams shared his compartment with a beer salesman for a Butte, Mont., brewing company, and learned some of the latest processes in the brewing of beer.

The pastor felt sure, however, that the brewery agent did not have an altogether comfortable time with his ministerial companion.

Rev. Williams performed the Methodist baptismal service on the train before reaching Seattle. The event was somewhat remarkable from the number of crowds represented.

The mother of the small child had been a Catholic and consequently was anxious to have her child baptized. Her husband was a Methodist and the mother was willing to have the child given the Methodist ceremony.

The god-mother was the wife of an Episcopal minister, a Congregational clergyman assisted in the service and a colored porter was present to offer whatever assistance necessary.

Rev. Williams gave brief accounts of his visits to the various large cities of the coast beginning with Seattle, which he said was a typical western city in every way.

Tacoma is a thriving place and Portland, the city of roses, in the center of the lumber country is an attractive city.

He spoke at some length on the charm and beauty of California with its diversified climate, its fine cities, and its people of a keen business acumen.

His spoke at some length on the charm and beauty of California with its diversified climate, its fine cities, and its people of a keen business acumen.

There are fifty churches of the Methodist denomination in Los Angeles and other sects are equally strong. Rev. Williams described the metropolis of Southern California as the city of churches and a city where church services were regularly attended, where full congregations gathered for all services.

In the evening of the Sunday which he spent there, he attended the Baptist service which was held at the auditorium. The great building was crowded to the fifth gallery and as many as 3,500 people heard the evening sermon which was given by a brilliant man who brought a good message but whose discourse was on the whole no better than they have heard every Sunday in Jansville churches.

Not because it was a special event or because a special speaker occupied the pulpit. It was the common thing for the people to flock to church.

Rev. Williams also spoke of a Sunday spent at Portland where church attendance is also good. At the morning service the president of Willamette University took up the majority of the sermon and when he finished he had obtained a subscription of $30,000 to the school's endowment fund.

This was only one of the examples of how "they do things out west."

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

RAIN.

By Howard L. Rann.

Rain is a wet article which falls with great enthusiasm just when somebody is trying to pull off a lawn party. It bears a close resemblance to water and is sometimes used as a substitute by people who prefer to take their microbes in a raw state.

Rain is a very uncertain quantity with every body except the weather bureau experts, who can always tell where it is going to light if they see it headed their way.

There are several distinct varieties of rain, all of which are quite moist. The least obtrusive of these is dew, a substance used by Robert W. Chambers to make some very amorous dowsy eyes and dewless morns.

A great deal of poetry has been written about the dew, but nobody ever mentions its effect upon the perspired pump and the crinoline petticoat. Another form of rain is the Kansas thunder storm, which is a distant relative of the Japanese typhoon and stop-father to the defuncted wash-out.

The spring freshet and the lightning rod industry. The most devastating form of rain is the cloudburst, which always waits until the score is tied in ninth inning before mingling with the spectators.

In the arid regions people get tired of waiting for rain and so after it with dynamite and constructed meetings, while over in the rain belt farmers have to cultivate their corn in a row boat. Hall is rain in pill form, and is the silent partner of the plate glass trust.

show is a childlike form of rain which pursues freely in the spring and prevents the accumulation of dust on the country roads. One of the most appetizing varieties of rain is the summer shower, which fills the stomachs of the plain people with hope and decayed vegetation. The rainy season of the Pacific slope is a damp epidemic which results from a powerful leak in the average mean precipitation. It is of slight importance, and is not advertised to any extent by the transcontinental railroads.

There is a great number of loyal and worthy Germans, Norwegians, Swedes, Danes, Irish, English and other nationalities, who have been residing in Rock county a great many years and who have helped develop the county, and are as much American citizens at heart as any of us.

Some of them may not be fully informed as to the laws regarding naturalization, or of the laws of the state as to who may vote, and this information is published so that all may have an opportunity to become full citizens in time, if they so desire.

VOTERS MUST HAVE FULL CITIZENSHIP AFTER THIS YEAR

Rush of Applicants for Second Papers Follows Amendment Passed Two Years Ago.

There is quite a rush of applicants for second citizenship papers these days, as this is the last year aliens can vote on first papers, and the only remaining day for hearing applications for second papers is set for September 23. All who desire to be made full citizens at that time must apply before June 23rd.

This is in accordance with the constitutional amendment adopted two years ago, which limits the time that aliens residing in Wisconsin may vote on first papers to December 1, 1912.

The naturalization law also limits the life of a Declaration of Intention to seven years, within which time the declarant must make application to become a full citizen, or his declaration will be declared void and he will have to commence all over again. Two years must elapse between the making of the Declaration of Intention and the application for second papers.

The seven year rule also applies to all who took out their first papers before the new naturalization law went into effect Sept. 26, 1906, and all declarations on first papers dated before that time will be void after Sept. 26, 1912.

All holding Declarations of Intention dated prior to Dec. 1, 1906 may vote at the primaries and election this fall, but they will have to apply for second papers this year if they wish to vote at the election next spring or after that.

There are also quite a large number who came to this country with their parents many years ago and whose fathers never took out second papers. The naturalization law now makes it necessary for all those to take out citizenship papers.

There was a special provision passed by congress however on June 25, 1910, permitting those of that class to take out second papers, without having to make a Declaration of Intention and then waiting two years before applying for second papers, provided, however, that the applicant has been voting, and exercising the rights of citizenship under the mis-information or belief that he was a citizen.

There is a great number of loyal and worthy Germans, Norwegians, Swedes, Danes, Irish, English and other nationalities, who have been residing in Rock county a great many years and who have helped develop the county, and are as much American citizens at heart as any of us.

Some of them may not be fully informed as to the laws regarding naturalization, or of the laws of the state as to who may vote, and this information is published so that all may have an opportunity to become full citizens in time, if they so desire.

CORN CONTEST FOR ROCK COUNTY BOYS

One Hundred and Fifty Boys Will Grow Corn to be Exhibited at Jansville Poultry Show.

A. B. West, who has charge of the agricultural classes at the high school has made arrangements through the assistance of Supt. O. D. Antfield and Prof. R. A. Moore of the Wisconsin agricultural experiment station, for a corn growing contest for Rock County boys.

One hundred and fifty boys have already been enrolled for the work and will each receive three-fourths of a pound of Silver King No. 7 corn to plant and care for. The boys will make a brief written report of the work that they do and each contestant will exhibit ten best ears at the annual exhibition of the Southern Wisconsin poultry association to be held in Jansville next winter.

Teachers in the rural schools have been engaged to present the plan to their pupils and the contest promises to be spirited. It will serve to interest and get them started in practical agriculture. Prizes will be offered for the best exhibits displayed at the poultry show.

The flower seeds donated by Mr. Oids of Madison, president of the Olds Seed Co. for the school children's competition flower raising contest, have been received and any school child who wishes to enter the contest will please call at Kizer's Jewelry store and get the packet containing 10 varieties of flower seeds and have their name registered. The seeds will be given out only when the committee is assured that the child intends to enter the contest in good faith. Cash prizes in gold will be given for different degrees of perfection. It is hoped at least 100 scholars enter the contest.

Mayor Monroe's plan is to lay the new brick gutter on Main street with the regular slant entirely to the curb (instead of about 6 feet from us as it is now) and removing all hitching posts from the streets and taking up the old stone gutters and taking the stone on the front street and make a splendid place to hitch on that street.

QUIT CALOMEL

Thousands Are Turning from This Dangerous Drug.

A Safe Vegetable Substitute Is Olive Tablets for the Liver.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, a prominent physician of Portsmouth, Ohio, has discovered a new laxative and liver tonic in a combination of vegetable materials, mixed with olive oil, which is in effect almost exactly like the old and untrustworthy calomel, except that there are none of the bad after effects of calomel.

Dr. Edwards has long been a foe of calomel, though he recognized its value along with its dangers.

His distrust of the necrocal drug eventually started him years ago towards experimenting with the view of discovering a substitute, and he is today in possession of the long-sought-for combination, which is in the shape of a little sugar-coated, olive oil coated tablet.

The results of fifteen years' experience and practice are embodied in these marvelous little tablets.

They are called Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, and their effect on the liver has been the means of relief to many of Dr. Edwards' regular patients as well as to thousands of others who have suffered and were afraid of calomel.

They are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of harmful impurities.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

By GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1901, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"They are in Freckles' old case in the limberlost," said Elmore. "I could not carry many for fear of breaking them, but I could bring a few after school."

"You come here at 4," said the Bird Woman, "and we will drive out with some specimen boxes and a price list and see what you have to sell."

"Oh, I do need the money!" said Elmore.

"Do you live in that beautiful cabin at the northwest end of the swamp?" asked the Bird Woman.

"Yes," said Elmore.

"I remember the place and a story about it now. You entered the high school yesterday?"

"Yes."

"It was pretty bad?"

"Pretty bad," echoed Elmore.

The Bird Woman laughed.

"You can't tell me anything about that," she said, "I once entered a city school straight from the country. My dress was brown calico and my shoes were quite heavy. What is your name, my girl?"

"Elmore Comstock," answered Elmore.

"Yesterday on the board it changed to Comstock, and for a minute I thought I'd die, but I can laugh over that already."

The Bird Woman arose and kissed her. "Finish your lunch," she said, "and I will get my price lists and take down a memorandum of what you think you have, so I will know how many boxes to prepare. Never mind the calico dress and the coarse shoes. Dig into the books, and before long you will hear yesterday's tormentors boasting that they were once classmates of yours."

She laughingly left the room and Elmore sat thinking, until she remembered how hungry she was, so she ate the food, drank the hot chocolate and began the process of getting a grip on herself.

Then the Bird Woman came back and showed Elmore a long printed slip giving a list of graduated prices for moths, butterflies and dragon flies.

"Oh, do you want them?" exclaimed Elmore.

"I have a few and I can get more by the thousand, with every color in the world on their wings."

"Yes," said the Bird Woman, "I will buy them, also the big moth entomologists that are creeping everywhere now, and the cocoons that they will spin just about this time. I have a sneaking impression that the mystery, wonder and the urge of their pure beauty are going to force me to picture and paint our moths and put them into a book for all the world to see and know. We limberlost people must not be selfish with the wonders God has given to us. I will pay good prices for all the moths you can find, because, you see, I exchange them with foreign collectors. The banker will buy stone axes, arrow points and Indian pipes. There was a teacher from the city grade schools here today for specimens. There is a fund to supply the ward buildings. I'll help you get in touch with that. They want leaves of different trees, flowers, grasses, moths, insects, birds' nests and anything about birds."

Elmore's eyes were blazing. "I'd I best go back to school or open a bank account and begin being a millionaire?"

Uncle Wesley and I have a bushel of arrow points gathered, a stack of axes, pipes, skin dressing tools, tubes and mortars. I don't know how I ever will sell three hours."

"You must go, or you will be late," said the Bird Woman. "I will be ready at 4."

After school closed Elmore, seated by the Bird Woman, drove to Freckles' old room in the limberlost. One at a time the beautiful big moths were taken from the interior of the old black case. Not a fourth of them could be moved that night, and it was almost dark when the last box was closed, the last figured and into Elmore's trembling fingers were paid $50.00. Elmore clasped the money closely.

"Oh, you beautiful girl!" she cried.

With the first streak of red above the limberlost Margaret Sinton was busy with the gingham and the intricate paper pattern she had purchased. Wesley cooked the breakfast and worked until he thought Elmore would be gone, then he started to bring her mother.

"Now you be mighty careful," cautioned Margaret. "I don't know how she will take it."

"I don't either," said Wesley philosophically, "but she's got to take it some way. That dress has to be finished by school time in the morning."

Wesley had not slept well that night. By the time he reached the front gate and started down the walk between the rows of asters and lady slippers he was perspiring, and every plausible and convincing speech had fled his brain. Mrs. Comstock helped him. She met him at the door.

"Good morning," she said. "Did Margaret send you for something?"

"Yes," said Wesley. "She sent me for you. She's got a job that's too big for her, and she wants you to help."

"Of course I will," said Mrs. Comstock. "It was no one's affair how lonely the previous day had been, or how the endless hours of the present would drag. "What is she doing in such a rush?"

"Now was his chance. "She's making a dress for Elmore," answered Wesley. "He saw Mrs. Comstock's form straighten, and her face harden, so he continued hastily. "You see Elmore has been helping us at harvest time, butchering, and with unexpected visitors for years. We've made out that she's saved us a considerable sum, and as she wouldn't ever touch any pay for anything we just went to town and got a few clothes we thought would fit her up a little for the high school. We want to get a dress done today mighty bad, but Margaret is slow about sewing, and she never can finish alone, so I came for you."

"And it's such a simple little matter, so dead easy, and all so between old friends like that, that you can't look above your boots while you explain it," sneered Mrs. Comstock. "Wesley Sinton, what put the idea into your head that Elmore would take things bought with money when she wouldn't take the money?"

"Then Sinton's eyes came up straightly. "Finding her on the trail last night sobbing so hard as I ever saw any one at a funeral. She wasn't complaining at all, but she's come to me all her life with her little hints, and she couldn't hide how she felt to face against the fact that there was books and tuition unexpected, and nothing will ever make me believe you didn't know that, Kate Comstock."

"If any doubts are troubling you on that subject, sure I know it! She was so anxious to try the world I thought I'd just let her take a few knocks and see how she liked it."

"As if she'd ever taken anything but knocks all her life!" cried Wesley Sinton. "Kate Comstock, you are a heartless, selfish woman. You've never allowed Elmore any real love in her life. If ever she finds out that thing you'll lose her, and it will serve you right."

"She knows it now," said Mrs. Comstock. "I'll be home tonight just as usual."

"Well, you are a brave woman if you dared put a girl of Elmore's make through what she suffered yesterday, and will suffer again today and let her know you did it on purpose. I admire your nerve. But I've watched this since Elmore was born, and I got enough. "Things have come to a pass where they go better for her or I interfere."

"As if you'd ever done anything but interfere all her life! Think I haven't watched you? Think I, with my heart raw in my breast and too numb to react it openly, haven't seen you and Margaret Sinton trying to turn Elmore against me day after day? When did you ever tell her what her father meant to me? When did you ever try to make her see the wreck of my life and what I've suffered? No, indeed!"

"Kate Comstock, that's unjust!" cried Sinton. "Only last night I tried to show her the picture I saw the day she was born. I begged her to come to you and tell you pleasant what she needed and ask you for what I happen to know you can well afford to give her."

"I can't!" cried Mrs. Comstock. "You know I can't!"

"Then get so you can!" said Wesley Sinton. "Any day you say the word you can sell $5,000 worth of rare timber off this place easy. I'll see to clearing and working the fields cheap as dirt, for Elmore's sake. I'll buy you more cattle to fatten. All you've got to do is sign a lease to pull thousands from the ground to oil, as the rest of us are doing all around you."

"Cut down Robert's trees!" shrieked Mrs. Comstock. "Tear up his land! Cover everything with horrid, greasy oil! I'll die first!"

"You mean you'll let Elmore go like a beggar and hurt and mortify her past bearing. I've got to the place where I tell you plain what I am going to do. Maggie and I went to town last night, and we got what things Elmore needs most urgent to make her look a little like the rest of the high school girls. Now here it is in plain English. You can help get these things ready, and let us give them to her as we want."

"She won't touch them!" cried Mrs. Comstock.

"Then you can pay us, and she can take them as her right!"

"I won't!"

"Then I will tell Elmore just what you are worth, what you can afford and how much of this she owns. I'll loan her the money to buy books and decent clothes; but when she is of age she can sell her share and pay me."

Mrs. Comstock gripped a chair back and opened her lips, but no words came.

"And," Sinton continued, "if she is so much like you that she won't do that I'll go to the county seat and lay complaint against you as her guardian before the judge. I'll swear to what you are worth and how you are raising her and have you discharged or have the judge appoint some man who will see that she is comfortable, educated and decent looking!"

"You—you wouldn't!" gasped Mrs. Comstock.

"I won't need to," said Sinton, his heart softening the instant the hard words were said. "You won't show it, but you do love Elmore! You can't help it! You must see how she needs things. Come, help us fix them and be friends. Maggie and I couldn't live without her, and you couldn't either. You've got to love such a fine girl as she is. Let it show a little!"

"You can hardly expect me to love her," said Mrs. Comstock coldly. "But for her a man would stand back of me now who would beat the breath out of your sneaking body for the cowardly doing with which you threaten me. After all I've suffered you'd drag me to court and compel me to tear up Robert's property. If I ever go they carry me. If they touch one tree or put down one greasy old oil well it will be over all I can shoot before they begin. Now, see how quick you can clear out of here!"

"You won't come and help Maggie with the dress?"

For answer Mrs. Comstock looked about swiftly for some object on which to lay her hands. Knowing her temper, Wesley Sinton left with all the haste consistent with dignity. But he did not go home. He crossed a field and in an hour brought another neighbor who was skillful with her needle. With sinking heart Margaret saw them coming.

"Kate is too busy to help today. She can't sew before tomorrow," said Wesley cheerfully as they entered.

That quieted Margaret's apprehension a little, though she had some doubts. Wesley prepared the lunch, and by 4 o'clock the pretty dress was finished as far as it possibly could be until it was fitted on Elmore.

CHAPTER V.

Wherein Mrs. Comstock Laughs the First Time in Sixteen Years.

THIRTY neighbor left, and Margaret packed their purchases into the big market basket. Wesley took the hat, umbrella and raincoat, and they went down to Mrs. Comstock's. As they reached the step Margaret spoke pleasantly to Mrs. Comstock, who sat reading just inside the door, but she did not answer.

Wesley Sinton opened the door and went in, followed by Margaret.

"Kate," he said, "you needn't take out your mad over our little racket on Maggie. I ain't told her a word I said to you or you said to me." She's not so very strong, and she's sewed since 4 o'clock this morning to get this dress ready for tomorrow. It's done and we came down to try it on Elmore."

"Is that the truth, Margaret?" demanded Mrs. Comstock.

"You heard Wesley say so," proudly affirmed Mrs. Sinton.

"I want to make you a proposition," said Wesley. "Wait till Elmore comes. Then we'll show her the things and see what she says."

"How would it do to see what she says without bribing her?" sneered Mrs. Comstock.

"It she can stand what she did yesterday and will today she can bear most anything," said Wesley. "Put away the clothes if you want to till we tell her."

"Well, you don't take this waist I'm working on," said Margaret, "for I have to baste in the sleeves and set the collar. Put the rest out of sight if you like."

Mrs. Comstock picked up the basket and bundles, placed them inside her room and closed the door.

Margaret threaded her needle and began to sew. Mrs. Comstock returned to her book, while Wesley edged and edged toward the door. He could see that Margaret was nervous and almost in tears, but the lines in Mrs. Comstock's impassive face were set and cold. So they sat and the clock ticked off the time—one hour, two, dusk, and no Elmore. Margaret long since had taken the last stitch she could. Occasionally she and Wesley exchanged a few words. Mrs. Comstock regularly turned a leaf and once arose and moved nearer a window. Just when Margaret and Wesley were discussing whether he had not best go to town to meet Elmore, they heard her coming up the walk. Wesley dropped his fitted chair and squared himself. Margaret gripped her sewing and turned pleading eyes to the door. Mrs. Comstock closed her book and grimly smiled.

"Mother, please open the door!" called Elmore.

Mrs. Comstock arose and swung open the screen. Elmore stepped in beside her, bent her double, the whole front of her dress gathered into a sort of bag filled with a heavy load and one arm stretched high with books. In the dim light she did not see the Shintons.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN, Food Specialist

"SIMPLE" DIET OBVIATES NEED FOR THERAPEUTIC FOODS.

A writer in the British Medical Journal says that the dietetic and therapeutic value of vegetables has not been left to be discovered by modern "faddists." Cato, he says, regarded cabbage (presumably uncooked) as a sovereign remedy for every ailment and injury, from fever to fracture. Some "faddists" maintain that the eating of flesh meat has a tendency to make one irritable and ferocious. This would seem to be borne out by the difference in temperament between the lion and the lamb, the cat and the rabbit. If it is true that man is neither carnivorous nor vegetable eating, he would resemble neither of these classes, but would be classed as omnivorous—of which the pig is the best representative. If, however, a simple diet, either flesh, fruit or cereal, were followed, there would be no need for therapeutic foods.

Home Testimony Convinces

Many Jansville sufferers from rheumatism, sciatica and neuritis testify that they have found "Serrito" so effective as an antidote to uric acid that almost immediate relief and complete liberation from pain has been secured. What is better to comfort our rheumatics than this home testimony?

"Thousands of old-time rheumatics are now in the best of health after using 'Serrito'."

"Its satisfied users are its best advertisers. Come to J. P. Baker & Son, the druggists, get a 50-cent box of 'Serrito,' a physician's prescription—not a patent medicine—but containing neither opiates nor Serrulose, and if it doesn't relieve you your money will be refunded."

Same Success Here As In Europe

Physicians Delighted By What New Tonic, Tona Vita, Has Done.

"Tired out, run-down half sick people are not so numerous as they were a year ago. 'Tona Vita' the great modern tonic has proved a successful in the United States as in Europe, and many thousands of Americans have been built up and restored to health by this medicine."

The physicians who introduced "Tona Vita" in this country are enthusiastic over the remarkable success of the medicine, and those who have been restored to health are also glad to tell their experience to the world.

Dr. Smith, of Rochester, N. Y., a trained nurse for sixteen years and a graduate of Bellevue Hospital, New York City, says:

"I have had no opportunity to take sufficient rest, and during the past year this has told on me. My nerves began to trouble me. I have not been sleeping well and my appetite and digestion were not as they should be. I tired easily and did not have the vitality to withstand a hard day's work as formerly. This tonic 'Tona Vita' was recommended to me and I decided to give it a test. I have been greatly benefited in health and strength by this medicine. I sincerely believe the tonic to be highly meritorious judging from my own experience."

Do you lack strength and vitality? Do you take cold easily and sleep poorly? Are you nervous and depressed? If so you are a sufferer from nervous debility and you should at once get a bottle of Tona Vita and see how quickly it will build you up.

Smith Drug Co. is the agent for Tona Vita in Jansville. Your money will be returned to you if you are dissatisfied with the tonic. The Approved Formula Co., Dayton, O.
